In Memoriam.

Lines written on the death of little Nellie. Wilton, daughter of Charles and Francis Wilton, aged six years and six months.

Good bye, little darling, good bye.
I suppose it's a blessing;
The Master knows best
Why our dear should go home
From the world of unrest.
From the papa and mama of earth
To the great Father's breast.
So good bye, little darling, good bye.
Good bye, little darling, good bye.
To early it seems for my darling to sleep.
But I pass my sweet one to Jesus to keep.
And I miss you so, precious,
I cannot but weep.
So good bye, little darling, good bye.
No more the same couch can
You and little sister share.
Till you meet in the bright land over there.
Good bye, little darling, good bye.
(GRANDMA, LOON LAKE.)

The new residences being erected on the Bates property by Frank Pitman are being rapidly pushed to completion.

THE NEWS.

A REPUBLICAN NEWSPAPER.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY

BURKE & STORMS,

ANTIOCH, ILLINOIS.

J. J. BURKE, Editor.

A. H. STORMS, NEWS AND LOCAL EDITOR.

Republican Judicial Ticket.

For Judges of the 17th Judicial Circuit:

JOHN C. GARVER, of Rockford.

CHARLES C. FULLER, of Belvidere.

CHARLES H. DONNELLY, of McHenry.

The Sunday Times-Herald states that Charles Fuller is looking for a place on the Board of Pardons, and should he get one, he will withdraw from the judicial race, in which case Charles Whitney will be nominated in his place.

At the Democratic Judicial Convention held at Rockford last Friday, J. K. Orvis, of Waukegan, was nominated as one of the Circuit Judges, of this Judicial Circuit.

Messrs. Burke & Storms, of the Antioch "News" have begun the publication of a new paper, "Milk Shippers' Bulletin," for the special benefit of those who ship milk to Chicago. As it is only 50 cents a year every milk dealer or shipper ought to have it. They are enterprising men in the midst of a milk district and will produce a paper worth the money. We have not seen it but know what they will do. Leave subscription here if you wish for it. —[Highland Park News.]

Father O'Neil, the pastor of the Catholic church in this parish, returned from a year's travel abroad on Saturday evening last and was welcomed by a large congregation on Sunday at St. Patrick's church in McHenry. He expressed himself as very happy to be again among friends and spoke feelingly of those departed during his absence. He will celebrate mass here on Sunday next. —[Waukegan Leader.]

H. B. Begun, of Helbron, former editor of the Helbron Tribune, died Tuesday at his home in that city. He was well known throughout the country and his death will cause much regret. —[Marengo Republican.]

CONGRESSIONAL GERRYMANDER.

Strong Opposition Developing Against It—The Plans Are Not Yet Fully Known.

The Chicago Chronicle says that strong opposition is developing against the new congressional gerrymander. It says:

"Lorimer, Jamieson and Hertz have troubles of their own tonight. What with rebellious senators and representatives who refuse to accept their plans for a senatorial and congressional gerrymander of Cook county, and the hostility of Congressman Foss, who came here from Washington to prevent if possible his district being torn to pieces; Congressman Hopkins, who will not consent to the loss of DuPage county and the addition of Will county to his district and ward leaders like Henry Wulff, of the twenty-seventh, and Perry A. Hull, of the third, who will not consent to divisions of their territory that would destroy their power in conventions, they are nearly at the end of their wits."

"Not less than a dozen senators and representatives have personally served notice on Hertz that they will accept nothing but fair play for themselves, and several have espoused the cause of Congressman Foss to the extent of pledging their votes against any apportionment that is hostile to his interests. Representative Olsen has told Foss that he will stand by him to a finish, and Representative Eldridge is confident he can muster no less than ten votes to support the young congressman."

The seventh district is arranged for the express purpose of not only disposing of Congressman Foss, but to enable Sheriff Pease to extend his rule south of Fullerton avenue. It will be composed of the twentieth, twenty-first, twenty-second, twenty-third, twenty-fifth and twenty-sixth wards.

"The felling over the proposed gerrymander is very bitter and there are indications that it will grow worse unless the machine makes some radical changes in its present plans. Another thing that has served to make the members angry is the refusal of Hertz and Lorimer to exhibit their maps and plans. Probably two-thirds of the house members tried to find out today what the new districts look like, but they have been informed that they are not ready."

The Judicial Nominees.

Rockford, Illinois, May 1.—The Seventeenth District Judicial Convention was called to order at 1 o'clock this afternoon. Hon. F. K. Granger was chosen chairman and Hon. A. J. Keller secretary. Charles Whitney in behalf of Lake county seconded the nomination of Garver, Fuller and Donnelly, and on motion these gentlemen were declared the unanimous nominees of the convention. Stirring speeches were made by the nominees. A Judicial Committee was appointed as follows: Lake, Charles Whitney; McHenry, A. B. Coon; Boone, R. W. Wright; Winnebago, R. J. Senior.

The Lake County Republican Judicial County Convention met at Libertyville, on Friday last, at 1 p. m.

The convention was called to order by W. L. Upton, and on motion A. B. Cook was named as temporary Chairman and L. Clarke as temporary Secretary. The temporary organization was then made permanent.

Fletcher, Highland Park; E. A. Parkhurst, Libertyville; A. H. Storms, Antioch; J. L. Swayer, Warren; J. W. Gilmore, Newport. The convention then adjourned.

Township Republican Caucus.

The Antioch Republican Township Caucus was called to order at two o'clock p. m., Thursday, April 29, 1897, at the Store of Williams Bros.

On motion D. A. Williams was elected Chairman and J. J. Burke Secretary.

Moved and seconded that the delegates to the Republican County Convention to be held at Libertyville, Ill., Friday, April 30th, be elected by acclamation. Motion carried, and the delegates chosen to represent Antioch in the County Convention were elected as follows:

D. A. Williams, A. H. Storms, R. D. Emmons, J. J. Burke, J. B. Burnett, George Webb, A. T. White, Herman Bock, L. J. Simons, A. G. Watson, H. D. Hughes, F. J. Howell, Geo. D. Paddock, A. B. Hermann.

Motion made, seconded and carried that the delegates present be empowered and instructed to cast the full vote of the delegation.

On motion caucus adjourned. D. A. Williams, Chairman. Attest: J. J. BURKE, Sec'y.

BUILD ROADS ON CREDIT.

An Enthusiast Advocates Bonding Towns to Construct Perfect Highways.

A pamphlet sent out by the department of agriculture contains an extremely vigorous address in favor of good roads which was delivered by Judge Thayer of Clinton, Ia., at a recent meeting of the Iowa Bankers' association. In it he declares that mud on highways annually costs this country in the destruction of vehicles, feed of extra draft animals and delay in getting products to market something like $250,000,000, of which sum the state of Iowa pays perhaps $5,000,000. Besides this, says Judge Thayer, there must be reckoned the immense amounts each year spent, or rather thrown away, in making and repairing roads of the old fashioned kind, with no result except the necessity of doing the work over again the next spring.

What he advocates is the bonding of every town to an amount sufficient to build scientifically perfect roads wherever they are needed within its boundaries and connecting with similar highways of the adjoining municipalities. Judge Thayer admits that when he advocates this plan among the farmers they always express a cautious dread of incurring a debt so large as he suggests. This he finds most aggravating, and he is moved to give a few somewhat impassioned paragraphs on the beauties of debt.

"Stagnation, savagism and ignorance," he says, "are the fruits of transacting business on the theory that nobody is entitled to the confidence of anybody. The business of civilization is transacted on the credit system. The business of barbarism is transacted on the 'no trust' plan. The 600,000,000 people who go in debt have food to eat, clothes to wear and at night a place to lay their heads. The 500,000,000 who do not possess sufficient confidence in themselves to trust one another never tasted floor or beef, go naked and sleep out doors. Activity, prosperity and thrift are the fruits of mutual dependence on one another, cemented with the legend, 'I promise to pay.'"

"When Columbus discovered America, he found this great continent occupied by a race of beings who were not only out of debt, but who paid no taxes. Debt has made America what it is. Its flourishing cities, its vast system of railroads, its multiplicity of industries, which give employment to millions of intelligent artisans, its Columbian exposition, its wonderful agricultural wealth and prosperity, could only have been brought about by one man using another man's money and paying something for the use of it. I cannot imagine a more dismal condition of things on this mundane sphere than the world out of debt."

CONCERNING FARM VALUES.

They Are Largely Determined by the Character of the Roads.

How much would you give for a farm located 1,000 miles from a railroad, a wagon road and every other means of communication with the rest of the world?

How much would you give for a farm within four miles of a railroad, and the wagon roads for those four miles filled with mud, stones, sand and trying grades?

And wouldn't you give more for that farm if the road to town or to several market points were hard and smooth and level, so that vehicles of all kinds, including bicycles, would happily convey many people to and fro, and so you could market the farm produce quickly and cheaply?

The value of a farm depends almost wholly on the railroads and wagon roads about it. Good roads are worth more to the farmer than to any one else. The more easily, quickly and pleasantly he can get to and from his farm the more it is worth an acre.

The distance to market depends on the character of the road.

THE HOUSEHOLD.

BY MISS O. J. WEIDNER.

We take great pleasure in adding this necessary department, under the control of a capable lady, well-known to many of our readers, especially those of Chicago and Fox Lake. Items of interest to the household, nursery or kitchen, will be given careful consideration. If addressed to Mrs. O. J. WEIDNER, 503 Washington Street, Hoboken, New Jersey.

Flowers an Ornamental Garden.

This is one of the best months for transplanting overgreens, indeed, if carefully handled, and the soil watered in about the roots, they will feel the check but little. This, however, applies to such as have been prepared for moving—not to old specimens that have long occupied the same position undisturbed. Should dry weather succeed the operation, sprinkling overhead occasionally will be highly beneficial till the roots have taken hold again. A week or ten days will, under ordinary circumstances, suffice for this. The pruning and training of holly hedges should be attended to at once, and roses closely watched for the appearance of green flies on the young shoots. Hardy annuals in variety may be sown from now onward during the month, taking care to thin out in good time if sown where they are to bloom. All plants that have been wintered under protection should be gradually hardened off to enable them to stand full exposure, then placed in their summer quarters. Provide for a good representation of hardy perennials in shrubbery arrangements, exchanging the old for new soil where planting, and let gladioli be largely used for autumn effect. Sweep and roll lawns frequently; trim grass edges, destroy all vegetation on walks; stir the gravel in the walks to brighten them up.

A NICE WAY TO PREPARE CANNED SALMON.—One can of salmon, three gills of water, three tablespoonfuls of butter, one and a half tablespoonfuls of flour, one pint of hot milk and six medium sized potatoes.

Pure the potatoes and put on to boil, cook until soft enough to mash, while the potatoes are boiling put two tablespoonfuls of butter in a frying pan, and when hot stir in the flour and stir until the mixture is smooth and frothy, then gradually add the water, stirring all the time. Season with salt and pepper, also season the fish with salt and pepper; add the fish and one gill of milk to the sauce, simmer gently for five minutes. Mash the potatoes, season with salt and pepper, one tablespoonful of butter and one gill of hot milk. Arrange the potatoes in a circle on a hot plate, pour the prepared fish in the center and serve at once. Any kind of fish may be prepared in the same manner.

ESCALAPED COLD MEAT.—One quart of cold chopped meat, one pint of water, one pint of grated bread crumbs, two tablespoonfuls of flour, two and one half tablespoonfuls of butter, and have the meat free from skin and bones and fat. Chop it rather coarse; put two tablespoonfuls of butter in a frying pan, when hot add the flour, and stir until smooth and brown, draw back to a cooler place and gradually add the water, stirring all the time. Now put back where this gravy will boil for three minutes; into a deep dish put half the meat, season with salt and pepper and moisten with half the gravy, sprinkle half the bread crumbs over this; spread the remainder of the meat in the dish, season with salt and pepper and moisten with the rest of the gravy. Sprinkle the rest of the crumbs on the meat, and dot with the half-tablespoonful of butter broken into small bits. Bake in a rather hot oven for twenty-five minutes. The bread crumbs must be crisp and brown and serve at once.

FRUIT SALAD.—Four bananas, two oranges, one small pine apple. Slice the bananas, peel or slice the oranges in the thinnest slices possible, cut the fruit crosswise, and with a silver fork pick the pine apple to pieces, put the bananas, oranges and pine apple in alternate layers in a glass dish, and between each layer spread the following dressing: The yolks of four eggs beaten until quite stiff and light colored, add one cup of powdered sugar, beat until the sugar is dissolved, then add the piece of two lemons, beat again, place on ice to be served very cold.

Raising Small Potatoes.

Small potatoes count for little either in or out of their jackets. They have absorbed rains of the spring and the sunshine of summer, and made the same demand on perspiration and shoe leather of the cultivator as tubers that would fill a teacup and sell at a premium. They may have developed considerable top and given the farmer a lively hope that when he marketed the crop he could pay off an old mortgage or purchase a new team. Alas for his faith and his mortgage and the continued vacancy in his pocket. The small potato ruins them all. Now there is a kind of so-called "small potato" that is causing not a little trouble and disappointment nowadays to their foolish and unfortunate growers. We allude to that rapidly increasing class of modern gent who are being dumped out of our schools and academies with the profound conviction that the object of education is to cause perspiration, secure a soft snap with a salary, and keep the old idea in flannel that mechanics and artisans are unfortunate necessities. There are thousands of these fools at large. You may find them loafing around boardin'-houses, where the pie they eat is got on credit, and laundry bills are eaten by rats before they are paid. They hold up the telephone poles with their backs, and wear out the seats of chairs, and hang around the post-office for a letter from home in which a fond parent may have inclosed a $5 bill. So long as they are the owner of a stomach it must be fed, and while the idea that the object of education is to escape toil has lodging under a hat the hands decline the plow handle or a hammer. In this matter-of-fact world such ideas are as likely to freeze as a shorn lamb would at the North Pole, and in the stern task of hewing out a living in the quarry of life they fall as a feather would in quivering a block of granite. These unfortunate are not, necessarily vicious or lazy, or in need of lye to clean their morals. They would better their condition if they could only do so without having to "come down" to manual, or even skilled labor. Who is to blame for this? In nine cases out of ten society is the culprit. It is accepted as sound gospel that work is to be shunned if possible, and that the primary object of education is not so much to carve out a brave, honorable and useful life as to secure a good position where the salary exceeds the sweating, Fed from this suckling bottle and nursed in this flannel, the result is simply logical—such a cow, such a calf. Go where you will in this broad land and you will find some farmer regretting that as soon as his boy has graduated and raised a mustache he has an aversion to the wood pile, objects to bending his back under a bag of corn, and keeps from the plow handle as a matter of breeding and conscience. The same may be observed in all places and trades, the school being used as a step-ladder to get out of the hole where the majority of mankind have to make boots and shoes, spin cotton and perspire at forges and in foundries. We have in education, but not in that kind that spoils its scholars and results in the big pile of "small potatoes" that what-ever of verdure there may be in the top has precious little of what is sound and good at the bottom. The modern aversion to work is in line with what we have said elsewhere that a man ashamed of a buck-saw despises the man who uses it. —Fred Woodrow, in Age of Steel.

Waukegan Department.

The Baptist Young Men's Club met last night and elected officers for the ensuing year. Charles Storz was elected President; Vice President, Charles Kueker; Secretary, Roland Dunn; Treasurer, Will Fels; Executive Committee, R. B. Dunn, L. J. Yager, and Herbert Robertson. ### How to Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty four hours; a sediment or settling indicates a diseased condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effect following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. For a sample bottle and pamphlet, both sent free by mail, mention The News and send your full post office address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The proprietors of this paper guarantee the genuineness of this offer.

A GOOD SAMARITAN.

Miss Nettie Houghton Cares For Homeless, Unemployed Girls.

Among the good Samaritans of Chicago not one deserves warmer commendation or more earnest co-operation than Miss Nettie Houghton. She has given her life to the work of aiding the unfortunate, and devotes herself especially to helping homeless girls who cannot secure occupation.

Many young women, discouraged and on the verge of despair, have been the recipients of her kindly assistance. Sheltering them in her home at 572 Fifth street, she provides them with clothing, food and medicine and aids them to find employment by which they can become self supporting.

Miss Houghton is warmly indorsed by many Chicagoans, including Mrs. E. P. Vail, Dr. P. S. Henson, Rev. George M. Bussett, J. A. Rondthaler, B. F. Jacobs and Bishop C. E. Cheney.—Chicago Post.

Floral Fans.

Some pretty feminine fancies are reported from Vienna. Ladies at the present time eschew bouquets at balls and use fans made of freshly cut flowers, which can be renewed over and over again. The local jewelers have invented gold and silver filigree frames, which are simply sent to the florists to have suitable blossoms attached to them. When a friend sends his or her photograph to another, it is the correct thing to slip it into a floral frame, sweet and fragrant as the morning, made of violets, rosebuds or lilies, and the demand for them is very great.

Another novelty is the introduction of floral serviette rings at dinner parties. When a lady seats herself, she slips this ring off, and passing it over her hand wears it as a bracelet. The gentleman who has taken her in presents her with this ring, and she puts it on the other wrist. These trifles promote conversation and compliments.

A Superior Stepmother.

The stepmother of General Lew Wallace was a woman of superior mind and intellect and possessed many beautiful traits which left an impress upon her gifted stepson, for it is related that it was she that kept in mind when he wrote "Ben-Hur," and the beautiful character of Ben-Hur's mother was none other than his own mother. In the countries where the position of woman is subordinate man is more or less brutal. This is a well known fact and can be traced all through the history of the world. It is then quite safe to predict that the highest type of manhood will never be reached except by close association with the highest type of womanhood.

The First Vote.

Mrs. S. M. Larabee, wife of Hon. Frank Larabee, president of the First National bank of McGregor, Ia., cast the first vote ever cast by a woman in Clayton county at the special election held recently in that city for the purpose of lowering the city for voter works. The correspondent of the Iowa Woman's Standard says: "Four women only were allowed to vote, and in consequence of their being allowed to cast their ballots the entire vote of that precinct was thrown out." By what authority or upon what grounds is not quite plain, Iowa women having been expressly given the right to vote on these questions.

Russian Lace in Favor.

Speaking of lace reminds me that Russian lace, the linen in cream color, or with blue or scarlet threads involved and the silk lace in the same heavy designs, are more in favor than ever this season, that showing a bit of color being much used to give a distinctive touch to shirt waists or simple taffeta bodices. An old fashioned silk lace has just come back into favor and was used on many of the prettiest evening gowns. This is of a silvery white and is exceedingly fine in texture, just such a lace as was used 60 years ago for the quilling on quaint bonnets and evening bodices.—Atlanta Constitution.

Policies on the Queen's Life.

The tradesmen in the west end of London have laid in immense stocks in expectation of a brilliant season in connection with the forthcoming celebration of the queen's jubilee. To guard themselves against loss in the event of the queen's death between now and June 22 they have taken out insurance policies on the queen's life. When the Duke of Clarence died, some of them were almost ruined; hence this new precaution.

Women as Workers.

Carroll D. Wright, in his report on the labor market, says:

The main reason given for the employment of women and girls is usually that they are better adapted for the work at which they are employed. Other reasons are that they are more reliable, more easily controlled, cheaper, more temperate, more easily procurable, neater, more rapid, more industrious, less liable to strike, learn more rapidly, etc.

Rebecca Brown Mitchell.

Mrs. Rebecca Brown Mitchell, who has been appointed chaplain of the Idaho senate, was brought up on a farm in central Illinois. Miss Willard says of her in The Union Signal: "She had a devout nature from childhood, and had she met with encouragement would have studied theology. She is a member of the Baptist church. Mrs. Mitchell has been a resident of Idaho since 1883 as a self supporting missionary, teaching a mission school and working for temperance in Sunday and day school, as well as in the W. C. T. U. and juvenile temperance organizations. She organized the first children's temperance society in Idaho. Her children are married and settled in homes of their own, leaving their mother free to carry on her work as an evangelist and state organizer for the W. C. T. U. In 1893, Mrs. Mitchell was elected superintendent of legislative work for the state, securing the passage of the bill which raised the age of consent from 10 to 14 years. Two years ago she was instrumental in securing an amendment of the constitution, which was adopted at the last election, granting suffrage to women and securing a further protection to the girls of the state by getting the age of consent raised to 18 years. Mrs. Mitchell's election to her present position as chaplain of the senate was almost unanimous, and she has been treated with great respect since she entered upon the duties of her office."

Mrs. McKinley's Color.

Blue is the favorite color of the first lady in the land, and whenever this effect can be arranged in the decorations at the White House it is always satisfactory to the mistress of that mansion. When the musicale of Miss Ella Russell was given at the executive mansion recently, it was at the suggestion of Mrs. McKinley that the audience gathered in the blue parlor, and this apartment was found to be admirably adapted to vocal and instrumental music. During the administration of President Harrison the mistress of the White House chose the green parlor as the music room of the executive mansion and had the decorations of the room arranged accordingly. Mrs. Cleveland continued to use this apartment as a music room, and it is generally voted the prettiest parlor in the White House.—Washington Letter.

Society and Telling Booth.

The action of the New England Historic Genealogical society in voting unanimously to admit women to full membership was wise and right. The favorite argument of the enemies of woman suffrage—to wit, that women ought not to vote because their place is at home—applies with equal force against admitting them to this society. Membership would keep them from home more ordinarily than would the elective franchise. But the so called argument is pointless and powerless in either case. Many will vote to let the women into the society who would not vote to let them into the polling booth merely because it is easier to follow common sense in small matters than in great ones.—Boston Advertiser.

The Fancy Waist.

In spite of authentic accounts from the most official sources and of endless snubs from the tailors and dressmakers, says a fashion writer, the ubiquitous fancy waist makes its elegant and fascinating appearance among the lovely things in spring and summer gowns. It will not down. This seems positive, and for the very good reason that it is one of the most attractive and graceful forms of dress ever devised for general uses as well as for the most ornate and charming finishing touch to an elaborate toilet, and the tempting, novel and beautiful creations in these bodices now exhibited by noted importers are potent evidences that they are still at the height of favor both here and abroad.

Fringed Hair.

There was a great deal of talk a little while ago about the fringe having gone out of fashion. But despite other styles of hairdressing having become so fashionable the fringe seems likely to remain among us as many years as it has hitherto done. The reason for this is that there are some faces that this style of hairdressing is more becoming to than any other, and also because women have grown far more sensible of late, and when they find a style of hair to suit them they stick to it, despite the fact that it is not so ultra smart, perhaps, as a new style that is the favorite whim of the moment.—New York Commercial.

Mrs. Richardson's Appointment.

Mrs. Richardson of Princeton, one of the busiest women of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, is a member of the board of trustees of the Juvenile Offenders' home at Geneva. She was appointed in place of Mrs. Holt of the Chicago Woman's club, resigned. The appointment is particularly pleasing since it brings Mrs. Richardson, who is a member of the philanthropic committee of the Illinois federation, in touch with the philanthropic work of the state.—Exchange.

Suggestive.

Woman's rights seem to be extensively shared in some parts of Maine, according to a notice published in the Piscataquis Observer: "Remember the substantial dinner—baked beans, brown bread, pastry, etc.—to be served at Relief Corps hall, North street, Foxcroft. Voters, 15 cents; nonvoters—meaning minors, Indians, paupers, idiots and women—10 cents."

She Conquered.

Miss Lillian Hamilton, who is private physician of the ameer of Afghanistan, has succeeded in convincing her royal patient of the utility of vaccination, says The Medical Record. Smallpox ravages Afghanistan every spring, killing about one-fifth of the children. Miss Hamilton has been deputed to organize a general vaccination service.

GRAY AND SILVER.

I had a love. Dark haired was she.
Her eyes were gray.
For sakes of her across the sea
I called away.
Dust, sickness, tempest and defeat
All pressed me by:
With years came fortune, fair and dear,
And rich was I.
Again for me the sun looked down
Familiar skies.
I found my love. Her locks had grown
Gray as her eyes.
"Alas," she sighed, "forget me, now
No longer fair!"
"I loved thy heart," I whispered low,
"And not thy hair."
—C. E. D. Phelps in New York Tribune.

THE BROKEN KEY.

The young and pretty bride felt worried and out of sorts. Only a short eight weeks ago she married her dear Gus, and had followed him to his home in W., and already he had begun to neglect her, to go out of an evening and to leave her alone in the big house. He had tried to convince her that he could not altogether neglect his former friends and companions and that she ought not to object to his meeting them on two evenings every week and to pass an agreeable hour or two in their company over a friendly game of whist, but she simply did not comprehend how he could enjoy himself without her; how he could ever think of going anywhere without taking her along.

"Oh, the dreadful evenings I have to spend!" she complained, with tears in her eyes. "I am obliged to sit here all alone because I have as yet had no chance to form any acquaintances here. Naturally I get homesick. Often I feel like leaving everything and taking the train home to my parents."

"Would it not be better, darling, if you went to bed and tried to sleep?" "That is just where the trouble is," she replied, still in tears. "I am afraid. Our servant sleeps way up in the attic. She would not even hear were anything to happen to me."

"Why you foolish child, what is there to be afraid of? What is going to happen?"

"Are not the papers every day full of burglaries and robberies?" she persisted. "Think of the many strangers that flock to a well known health resort like this. Nothing is impossible under such circumstances."

The husband looked thoughtfully at his sweet bride.

"No, dear, I do not want you to frighten yourself into illness. I promise you herewith of my own free will"—the poor fellow could not help heaving a sigh as he said this—"to return promptly at 11 o'clock whenever I go to meet my friends. It is impossible for me to withdraw myself from their society altogether, for they would ridicule and make fun of me and call me heepped. Burglars rarely put in their appearance before the hour of 11, the streets being full of life and traffic. Goodby, darling, and please do not feel homesick."

Annie sighed and submitted resignedly to her fate. She read awhile. She then took up her embroidery, a present for her mother. She played a game of solitaire, and finally she paced restlessly up and down the room. At home there had been a large family circle; hence it was very trying to her to be left so much to herself in her new surroundings.

At 10 o'clock even the familiar noises in the kitchen ceased, for the servant had gone up stairs to her attic, and the poor woman felt the old feeling of distress and fright creep over her. The sitting room was located at the rear of the house, and there was a hallway between it and the front rooms. She therefore could not hear the usual noises. A deathlike silence reigned in the room. Tired and yet excited, she threw herself on the lounge. She sadly reflected why her husband and card parties had been called into existence. By and by her thoughts became more and more confused, and she fell into a sound slumber. It was 11 o'clock when Gus arrived breathlessly and posthaste at his house door and tried to fit his key into the lock.

Poor fellow! Had evil spirits conspired to get him into trouble? Click—the key broke in two, and the bit stuck fast in the keyhole, handle and barrel alone remaining in his hands.

He knocked, he called, he knocked again and louder—for unfortunately there was no house bell; all in vain. "I hardly think my wife has retired as early as this," he reflected, "but of course she is in the sitting room, and most likely she cannot hear me." Once more he knocked, this time very loud. He called until his voice was hoarse; no reply.

To fill his cup of misery to the brim he commenced to rain, and he was without an umbrella.

"Perhaps Annie has gone to bed after all," he thought, shivering and dripping wet. "Shall I go to a hotel? No! What would the people think! The only place that I know of that may still be open is the railway depot, for there is a train arriving at midnight."

He went down the street in a pouring rain and at last found himself in the waiting room of the station.

"A glass of beer, sir?" asked an enterprising waiter. Gus shook himself. He felt chilly. "Punch," he said, "and make it hot!" He drank one glass and then another and still another to while away the time. He was the only person there. In due time the last train had arrived, and he could stay no longer. They were about to close up.

In sheer desperation he looked at his watch.

It was 1 o'clock when he emerged into the street, and it had ceased to rain. The full moon seemed to grin and wink at him maliciously through the clouds, as though she meant to say: "See, old man, it serves you right. Why must you go out to play cards and leave your wife at home in loneliness?"

In spite of the repeated potations he still felt chilly. "There is no help for it but a good run," he said to himself, starting on a lively trot through the city, first down one street, then up another, through the suburbs, until he reached the open country and back again without stop or rest for fear of catching cold.

The town clock struck the hour of 4. "It is still too early to get into the house," he said. "The front door is never unlocked before 6 o'clock. Will they be able to unlock the door anyway? A piece of my key sticks in the lock. The women are imprisoned and cannot get out. But now I can stand this no longer. I must have something hot to drink and sit down somewhere. There is a train at 4 o'clock." And forthwith he once more wended his way to the railroad depot.

A snug corner and a cup of hot coffee somewhat restored him. But he was very tired, and pretty soon he was sound asleep in his corner as his wife had been the night before on her lounge.

And how did his wife fare? She awoke in the middle of the night with a start, almost frightened out of her wits by a horrid dream, in which her husband had appeared before her, wounded, bleeding and torn by huge bloodhounds. Pretty soon, however, she comprehended the situation. Her face bathed in tears, she paced restlessly up and down the room, wringing her hands. "Oh, the wretch! To stay out all night! Just to think of it! Such a man has the effrontery to talk to me of love. Not content to act like a villain, he even had to make fun of me last night by pretending he would henceforth be home at 11 o'clock. Who would ever have thought him so base? They close the beerhouse after midnight; hence he cannot pretend to be playing cards there all night. Heaven only knows where he is spending the night, in whose company he is enjoying himself, while I—But he'll find that I am not his dupe. I shall leave him at once. There is a train at 7 o'clock in the morning which I am going to take and go home to my parents."

At 5 o'clock she called the serving maid, whom she sent to the garret for a valise and commenced to pack. The maid said nothing, and she was surprised that her master had not risen and did not help his wife. However, she made the coffee and went after a cab.

The front door was wide open and a locksmith busy with the big lock when Annie appeared in the hall. The landlady ran to meet her, exclaiming in a hurry of excitement: "Did you hear about it, madam? A thief was here last night and made an attempt to enter the house. Some one must have frightened him off. He left a broken key stuck fast in the lock, and was unable to unlock the door. I had to call from the window until I aroused a neighbor, who ran for a locksmith. Now I am going to have a patent lock put on and spoil their little game. But you look very pale, my dear madam. I am sorry to have frightened you with my burglary story. Are you going to take a ride so early this morning?"

Annie nodded and passed on. She was glad that the woman had not seen her valise, which her maid had already put into the cab.

"What a narrow escape I had last night! How near I came being robbed—perhaps worse!" She was now thoroughly angry. So much more reason for leaving the fellow, no matter what the consequences! "For the present I shall remain with my parents." Thus musing, she arrived at the depot.

Before purchasing her ticket she intended to leave her valise in the waiting room. Annie entered and made for an empty table, when suddenly she dropped the valise and almost screamed aloud. Wasn't that her husband, "her" Gus, sitting there in a corner and snoring loud enough to make everybody in the room smile at his nasal powers? He looked tired and worn, and his garments appeared damp. How did he get here, and why was he in such a dilapidated condition? She stood for a moment undecided and unable to take her eyes off his drawn, worn-out features.

Suddenly the sleeper opened his eyes. Whatever the outcome, she must avoid a scene in a public room. Anything but that. The waiters had more than once looked wonderingly at the man who had drunk three cups of coffee and then fallen asleep hours ago. Annie tried to appear quite unconcerned and took a seat beside her husband. Somehow her anger had suddenly vanished.

"Oh, darling, what brought me—I mean rather what brought you—here?" he asked, astonished at the unexpected appearance of his wife dressed for a journey.

"Never mind, dear. Don't bother about that now," she whispered. "Come, let us ride home, where I will explain all."

Gus acquiesced in silence. His feet felt heavy and hardly able to carry his weight. He was sick. All he could do was to drag himself to a cab.

And then explanations were in order. Annie had no reason to doubt her husband's narration of his adventures during the night, and what the landlady had told her about the broken key tended to corroborate and exonerate him. But he could not quite make out from her explanations what had taken her to the railway station. He was, however, too ill to ask many questions.

Arrived at home, she simply told the astonished servant that "they had changed their mind and would not go away because her husband, who had preceded her to the depot, had been suddenly taken sick," and sent her after a physician.

Gus was very sick. For two weeks he could not leave his bed. A complicated and aggravated attack of influenza was the result of his experience during that ill fated night.

Annie never left his bedside, and now it was her great care and tireless, devoted nursing that opened his eyes as to the depth and unselfishness of her great love for him.

At last Gus got well, and though he would now and then go to have a social game of whist his wife never again doubted him, even if he staid out later than 11.—From the German.

Old Tweed Days.

Judas Iscariot has found his apologists in these modern days, and Satan has an eloquent advocate in an English lady novelist of lively imagination. It is not strange, therefore, that even poor old Boss Tweed has at last somebody to say a good word for him. It is a little odd, though, that this daring defender should be the present mayor of New York city, Colonel W. L. Strong. The mayor asserts, as others declare incorrectly, that the corrupt and coarse old boss planned out some of the handsome boulevards, parks and avenues of the city.

Be that as it may, Colonel Strong's mention of the defunct and execrated boss has moved another citizen of New York, Mr. W. E. D. Stokes, to declare that he knows where there are two trunks full of intensely interesting documents of the time of the Tweed ring. They are nothing more or less than letters received by Boss Tweed in his days of power. Stokes does not hesitate to say that if these letters were made public they would cause no end of a stir in some of the first families of New York. Men of the highest reputation had their little schemes to propose in the way of underhand means to turn a penny. There is also Tweed's "Loan Book," which is perhaps the most fearful document of all. In it the boss jotted down the "loans" he made to this citizen and that, likewise the manner in which the loan was to be paid, by "vote on charter" or similar little service, legislative or otherwise. One book gives the outlines of the famous "addition, division and silence" scheme and shows the stealings of the ring to have amounted up into the millions. The names of some of the thieves would astonish New York if they were published, Mr. Stokes more than hints.

For the present, however, he will not divulge the names, chiefly for the reason that the publication would cause "other hearts to bleed."

One Contented Farmer.

A Kansas farmer writes to The Country Gentleman that he sold last year $897 worth of products from his land. One-fourth of the amount came from the sale of beef cattle. Rather more than that was received for sound and well broken horses reared upon the farm. A pair of matched carriage horses brought the best price of any of the live stock.

It is to be noted that the money came from live stock, from poultry and dairy products. The fowls and eggs disposed of made no inconsiderable income. Sheep and lambs cut also an important figure in the bringing in of money. The old fashioned farm ways have been abandoned by this up to date agriculturist. He saw that grain was a drug in the market. He therefore fed his grain at home and took the product to market in the shape of well fattened young heaves, swine and lambs and gentle, sound, well broken horses, draft and carriage, all of them animals with improved blood in them.

The $897 this Kansas farmer realized from his sales was largely clear profit. He has free his house rent, food and nearly all the other things the city dweller must buy at high prices except clothing for himself and family. To live as well as this farmer does would require for a city man a salary of $1,500 a year, and then nothing would be saved, whereas the Kansas agriculturist will lay up for the future education of his children or for anything else he desires $400 or $500 annually.

It is an interesting question how long the skyscraping buildings now being erected in New York and Chicago will last. The frames are of iron, it is true, but there are hundreds of joints and seams where rust can eat in. There are a constant jarring and shaking of the ground from heavy trucks and from the elevated railways that are near enough to cause their vibrations to affect the iron of the great buildings. It is well known that in time railway car wheels change their structure, owing to the constant jarring of the iron, so that they break easily. A very little of this brittleness, a rusting out of a joint in a weak spot, would cause a whole 25 story building to fall.

A curious decision has been made by a Canadian judge in a tobacco lawsuit. The Tobacco trust of Canada demanded that any dealer handling their cigarettes should abstain from having on sale those of any other maker. A dealer who kept other goods than theirs in his stock brought suit against them on this issue. Judge Dugas of Montreal decided that the Tobacco trust had a perfect right to insist that a dealer who kept their cigarettes on sale should not sell those of any other manufacturer. It seems that the manufacturer owns the retail dealer, body and bones, in Canada.

Some American cattle raisers complain because Mexican heaves are allowed to come into the country duty free. But, on the other hand, thousands of hogs and the dressed meat of thousands more go into Mexico duty free every year. This being the case, it is no more than fair, is it, that we should return the courtesy? If a heavy duty is placed on Mexican cattle arriving in the United States, Mexico can instantly put on the screws and fix a prohibitory tariff rate on our hogs and pork. Who can blame her if she does so?

To the Poles.

Two important projects of popular exploration are now being planned, one to the north, the other to the south pole. The one to the north will be managed by Lieutenant R. E. Peary. The plans are made. The lieutenant is sure that with his experiences of arctic travel he can reach the pole on a third expedition. There is at present only one thing lacking, that is the money to conduct the expedition. Some of those Americans who give fancy balls costing $250,000 and who build houses that cost $1,000,000 are respectfully invited to devote their attention to an enterprise that if successful would make the United States as illustrious as Spain became in connection with the discovery of America. A new world was discovered under Spanish patronage. Let the north pole be reached by the munificence of an American private citizen.

Meantime Professor Andree gives out that he will this summer go to the north pole by balloon. We shall believe Professor Andree intends to start when he has actually out loose his strings and soared with his balloon into the blue empyrean. It may be mentioned in passing that Andree's expenses for his balloon voyage are paid by King Oscar of Sweden.

The English government will appropriate $80,000 toward a thorough exploration of the south polar seas and continents. The request for two ships for three years, which Dr. John Murray has made, will probably be granted. The object of the British south polar expedition will be more commercial than scientific. The explorers, after thoroughly sounding and charting the seas south of 60 degrees south latitude, also examining their products, will endeavor to reach the south pole itself by sledging over inland ice.

Shall England and Norway surpass us in commercial and scientific enterprise?

Advertising Art.

All the resources of the skilled artist are now taxed to produce simply advertisements. There is more money for an ingenious and industrious wielder of brush and pencil in illustrating a bicycle or bonnet catalogue than in painting a rare landscape. It is not a sign of degeneracy in art either. It is a sign that the best artist's talents are at the service of the common people and that his skill and industry can educate and please the eyes of all.

The modern poster is a marvel of color, form and imagination. The fad for collecting posters is not a senseless one. From such a collection the prevailing thought and customs of civilized people at the close of the nineteenth century can be read 8,000 years hence. Some of the posters are monstrous. Yet others show a wealth of beautiful and delicate idea and workmanship. The rare green and lilac shades formed a background of exceeding beauty for marvelous sprays of shining Easter lilies. Certainly never in history were there such striking and beautiful color effects in poster art as at present. A color craze possesses the inhabitants of the earth. In dress, in house drapery, in flowers, everywhere, they revel in dazzling rainbow tints.

The color craze has even invaded journalistic letterpress and partly driven out the sober black ink that so long monopolized the newspaper page. Articles printed in cerise blue, advertisements in type of flaming red, are becoming common. So are colored advertisement pictures in the newspapers.

Here is a specimen of the problems confronting congress in the matter of tariff legislation: The farmers of the whole country and the great cattle barons of the west want an import duty on hides. The men who make shoes, harness and other articles of leather protest energetically, on the other hand, that they will be ruined if a duty is put upon hides. They represent eloquently that the leather interest demands hides should be duty free. In this case the leather interest is diametrically opposed to the hide interest, and how will congress fix things?

The latest trust is—the saints preserve us!—the Onion trust. A Kansas City man whose plans not even the fragrance of his breath could give away has quietly made a deal whereby he controls 27,000 barrels of onions. A rare opportunity for enrichment is here offered to the newspaper artist.
